Dear UConn Water System Users:

The University of Connecticut is lifting the Stage IA Water Conservation Alert that was issued when area streamflows were reduced by seasonally dry conditions. The recent rainfall has restored streamflow in the rivers near our wellfields.

Thank you for your support and cooperation throughout our period of water conservation. Even though our conservation stages are officially lifted, we encourage your prudent use of water consumption throughout the year.

Sincerely,

Stanley L. Nolan
Director of Utility Operations and Energy Management
